2021 Elevating Lives

YW Boston's Elevating Lives Series is a curated event series that focuses on areas relating to our mission of eliminating racism and empowering women. Our series convenes thought leaders from across sectors for transformative discussions that support diversity, equity, and inclusion. Our 2021 Elevating Lives Series will feature two interactive, virtual events.

Demystifying Critical Race Theory: How CRT can support organizational diversity, equity, and inclusion

Tuesday, October 26, 2021 | 9:00 – 10:30 AM

Please join YW Boston and Critical Race Theory scholar Patricia J. Williams for the first installment of our 2021 Elevating Lives virtual event series. During this event, we'll take a closer look at Critical Race Theory, explore corporations' responsibility to support racial justice, and understand how CRT can help organizations better determine where to advance diversity, equity, and inclusion work.

Measuring Equity and Inclusion: Using Data for Organizational Change

Wednesday, December 8, 2021 | 9:00 – 10:30 AM

Please join YW Boston for the second installment of our 2021 Elevating Lives virtual event series. We will explore the importance of measuring behavioral change as a key indicator of successful equity and inclusion initiatives in the workplace. Drawing from YW Boston's unique approach and findings from our extensive DEI Services, we will explore the key drivers to behavioral change and how organizations can go about measuring new and existing workplace inclusion initiatives.
